Cocktail Mixology (indoor event)

We serve up an ideal activity for any team building or corporate hospitality event involving fun, flair and cocktails. Delegates will be served mouth watering cocktails and before they get to have a go for themselves! They will be taught the introductory techniques of a professional mixologist and then they will be taught and judged by our professional team in this entertaining and enlightening team building experience.

Guests arrive and are put into teams and have a chance to enjoy a freshly made cocktail. It's then onto the Cocktail Speed Round - Now is the time to watch carefully and take notes! Our team will demonstrate a cocktail and then one member from each of the teams will come forward and race against the other teams to recreate the cocktail shown. We will then mark their efforts and award points to each team. We can do several rounds of this, depending on the length of time you require the programme to last. After each round the teams get to enjoy the drinks they have made.

Next it's onto the Flair Round - Two members from each team are now brought up and are asked to perform a couple of flair manoeuvres. They will be judged on their abilities and awarded points. Finally it's the Creativity Round - Each of the teams now have to choose two mystery ingredients from an unknown selection. They are then asked to create a "team cocktail" using the two mystery ingredients and the selection of spirits and liqueurs on show. They will be drawing on the techniques shown to them from the Cocktail Speed Round. Once the teams have decided on their creation, they will be asked to "sell" the cocktail to the rest of the party. Marks will be given on taste, use of ingredients, procedure and the presentation of their cocktail.

And finally the Prize Giving - A prize is awarded to the best team based on the marks given for each section and then they are served one more round of drinks so they can mingle and chat to the bartenders.

The Bigger Picture (indoor event)

Designed to sit comfortably within your conference environment, The Bigger Picture provides an excellent teamwork and communication forum for your entire group. Drawing on the delegates' conceptual and spatial talents, small groups work collaboratively to recreate a picture from limited information and resources.

Collectively each small group/team will work together to recreate a work of art - or bespoke design to your specification. Each team is given a miniaturised section of the artwork comprised of a number of individual tiles. Using only the equipment provided and within a fixed timeframe they will scale up and produce their contribution to the finished full-size artwork. The groups will recreate the masterpiece in non-toxic, washable acrylic paint with suitable protective clothing provided.

At the finale, all guests gather together to assemble the sections of individual tiles within a framework to complete the picture – quite often with hilarious results! This high-quality event emphasises the need for clear and accurate communication, encouraging people to work together knowing their individual talents have played an important part in creating 'The Bigger Picture'.

Rollercoaster (indoor event)

Rollercoaster is a fun task designed to challenge your guests in a constructive, creative and interactive session. Logic, planning and, most of all, team work are key as teams design and build a roller coaster that will allow a coloured ball to travel the length of the track unassisted. Divided into teams, each group will work on their own section of the track but as the event progresses they will see that they need to work together to complete the challenge.

“The event went really well!” BMC Software

The first task is to work out how to use the limited materials provided to start working on designing the track. Each group’s materials must be moulded in the same way, so they match up, but will they realise this in time? Next it is time to build the track but teams must communicate effectively with each other to ensure their section matches up with the one connecting, if one team’s section ends on a sharp incline the next team must build a decline. In the grand finale the track is tested to see if the group has successfully completed the challenge. Supporting their section of the track teams must try not to move, as they wait with bated breath, to see if the ball will successfully travel from one end of the roller coaster to the other.

Designed to encourage guests to communicate and interact in a fun environment, Rollercoaster works well as an icebreaker or conference breakout session. Guests will feel fully invigorated, making this a memorable addition to any conference.

The team can do as many as they like, in any order, but everything is scored on a qualitative basis.

The tasks loosely fall into 4 categories, namely Performance-related; Creative; Mental agility; and Physical.

Some tasks require a few members or all of the team, whilst others require co-operation or competition with other teams. In this way, each guest gets to work with the maximum number of people in the room, facilitating the team building process. Suitable for indoors or outside, 100 Challenges can also be highly themed and adapted so that the challenges complement the objectives of your conference and reinforce your key messages.

As time progresses, each team tends to work faster and more frantically to get as much money as they can – the pace of the action will build as your teams complete their challenges, reaching fever-pitch in the closing minutes.

This creates an extraordinary atmosphere entirely driven by your participants.

CSI Experience (indoor or outdoor event)

A major miscarriage of justice is about to transpire and only your group of crack investigators can clear the innocent party...by catching the true criminal in time.

Working to eliminate characters from a list of suspects, teams must learn and use a variety of CSI skills to find and analyse crucial evidence. Using newly acquired knowledge of forensic science and Police procedures, teams will be assisted by our facilitators and instructors in a series of time critical tasks such as fingerprint harvesting, forensic photography and even shooting TV appeal videos.

In a competitive yet ultimately collaborative format, groups tackle the challenges to earn access to laboratory results that prove the innocence of those in the frame and continually narrow down the field of suspects to find the true culprit. Your teams will need to adapt in order to solve problems against constantly changing time constraints and evolving situations just like a real-life investigation. Can any one team crack the case to free their colleague or will a cross county collaboration be required to see justice done? Culminating in the viewing of each teams photofit and live television appeals, this is a hugely engaging and unusual experience designed to bring your teams together by better communication, teamwork and ultimately fun!

DURATION Flexible (according to number of challenges)

REQUIREMENTS: Large Open space/field

GUEST NOS. 50-300

COST: Priced depending on number of guests
